Call for Papers

Invited Speakers:
Hermann Ney ◆ RWTH Aachen
Marco Baroni ◆ Università di Trento

The Conference on Natural Language Processing ("Konferenz zur Verarbeitung Natürlicher Sprache", KONVENS) aims at offering a broad perspective on current research and developments within the interdisciplinary field of natural language processing. It allows researchers from all disciplines relevant to this field of research to present their work.

We welcome contributions on research, development, applications and evaluation, covering all areas of natural language processing, ranging from basic questions to practical implementations of natural language resources, components and systems.

Important Dates:

May 25, 2012	Paper submission deadline
July 20, 2012	Notification of acceptance
August 27, 2012	Camera-ready submission deadline
September 19-21, 2012	Main conference
September 21, 2012	Workshops

We especially encourage the submission of contributions proposing new methods for learning from substantial amounts of natural language (including speech) data, be they annotated or unannotated, as well contributions relating to evaluation of such methods. Submissions should describe unpublished research or innovative industrial applications.
